Deployment of staff and resources

Children with a high level of SEN can have one to one support from a Teaching Assistant for specific lessons, interventions or individual teaching programmes. Mainstream classes have a higher level of additional adult support across the day if there is a high level of low-level SEN need in the class so those children can have more focussed small group input from both the class teacher and teaching assistant.

A specialist TA for emotional difficulties runs afternoon groups for children across the school and in the morning works with the schools HLTA running the behaviour and additional needs class for 8 children in the school. She also provides 1:1 support for specific children across the school.

A play therapist works with individual children who have been identified as having significant emotional needs. They have 1:1 sessions on a weekly basis to support their emotional development, behaviour and mental health.

The school have also bought in the TaMHs (targeted mental health service) service for half a day a week through Traded Services to work with children and their families.

Precision teaching books (for both literacy and maths) are purchased for individual work with those children suspected as having specific learning difficulties or that have had a visual stress screener.

Involvement of pupils in their SEN reviews

Where appropriate pupils with a statement or EHCP contribute to the annual review process. Where they do not contribute directly at the meeting the children fill in a short questionnaire or give an informal interview on film outlining how they feel they have done over the past year, what they have enjoyed and what they would like to improve on over the next year.

Parental Involvement

Parent/carers have regular termly contact with the SENCo/class teacher through IEP review (in the form of a structured conversation), annual reviews as well as parent-teacher meetings each term. There is an open classroom door policy so parents can speak to their child's teacher at any time and the SENCo is always available for parents to book a meeting with.

The Team Around the Child (TAC) process offers a support network for SEND parents/carers where required.

Disability Duty

Date of last review of Disability Duty: October 2017

Next review: October 2019

Numbers of children with disability or medical needs

During 2017-2018 we had 8 pupils with medical needs which required a Medical Care Plan. The needs across the school are varied. All staff receive training annually from the school nurse to deal with these needs and key staff who come into regular contact with the child are listed on the Care Plan. All support staff received First Aid training in September 2018 and continue to do so annually.

Steps taken to prevent disabled pupils from being treated less favourably than other pupils

Even Swindon is an Inclusive school in which we act to ensure all pupils have equal access to the curriculum. Actions we take to ensure this include the provision of 1:1 support for pupils who require support for trips and activities such as swimming. We have a School Inclusion policy and this was updated last year.

Parents and carers involvement in the provision for pupils with special educational needs and of those with disabilities and/or medical needs

Parents are actively encouraged to engage with education through opportunities to come into school, attend coffee mornings, parent workshops and parent consultation meetings. Parents have access to the school nurse to discuss any issues and the school parent support advisor and pastoral TA.
